DISSERTATION

Title: L'incarnation de l'amour. Recherche sur la signification du corps humain dans la lumière de la christologie de Saint Thomas d'Aquin

Abstract: The body is for communication of life. This communication, and this is proper to man, takes place in and through love. Love asks self offer, which can also ask offer of the body in the sense of giving his life. This is true in an eminent way for Christ, who being true man can truly suffer. On the cross he is source of life for all men, giving his life out of love.

He gives his body. In the sacrament of marriage spouses give themselves to each other. This friendship and self-giving in love implies they give their bodies. In this offer of their bodies the spouses express their love and are open for a new life. Body allows man to give his own life for another and to give life to another. The sacrament makes the link between this gift of the spouses and the gift of Christ to and for the Church. This research on the place of the body leads to an ecclesiology approach and to a better understanding of the link between marriage and the other sacraments, especially the Eucharist.
